John Glenn High School
Wayne, Michigan

Foreword

Space developments are placing an increasing burden on schools because of the need to prepare students for the highly-competitive world in which they will be living. Knowledge gained at John Glenn will enable our students to hold their own in the free-enterprise system under which we operate. The administration, faculty, and school system have combined to insure that all students who leave JGHS will be prepared for their futures.

Principal

It is hard to imagine how chaotic the usually normal routine of a school day would be without the guiding hands of our administrators. Their many hours improve our school beyond just seeing that everything is orderly. Working closely with the principals are our counselors, to whose help and advice any student can attest.

At John Glenn Principal Frank Higgins has gathered a unique group, his "Cabinet", composed of administrators, counselors, and department heads who confer on policy and act as staff spokesmen.

Our total administration has pledged itself to one aim: to furnish the best education possible for John Glenn students.

English 7,10

Today's world makes it mandatory that educated citizens become increasingly conscious of language in general and their own in particular. The English department strives to instruct students in acceptable forms of the English language and to provide numerous literary experiences. The aim of the department is to measure and improve the capacities of each student. Although the goal of the department is not to produce professional writers, valuable writing experiences are provided. Students are trained to use their language correctly and effectively in whatever career they ultimately select.

A well-trained, highly select group of teachers, under the leadership of chairman Marvin Nochman, aware of the correlation between economic success and reading and writing abilities, gives students the thorough English knowledge necessary for life.

In its first year the student newspaper, the John Glenn Echo, has established itself as the voice of the students. Filled with news and pictures of all school activities, the Echo, published every other week, has been a major link between the school and the community as well as keeping the students, faculty, friends and family informed about what is going on at Glenn.

Fine Arts Department

Having already conducted a highly-successful Arts Show, the fine arts department through its classes offers skills and techniques in the use of all phases of art as a tool of communication for the expression of man's highest aspiration.

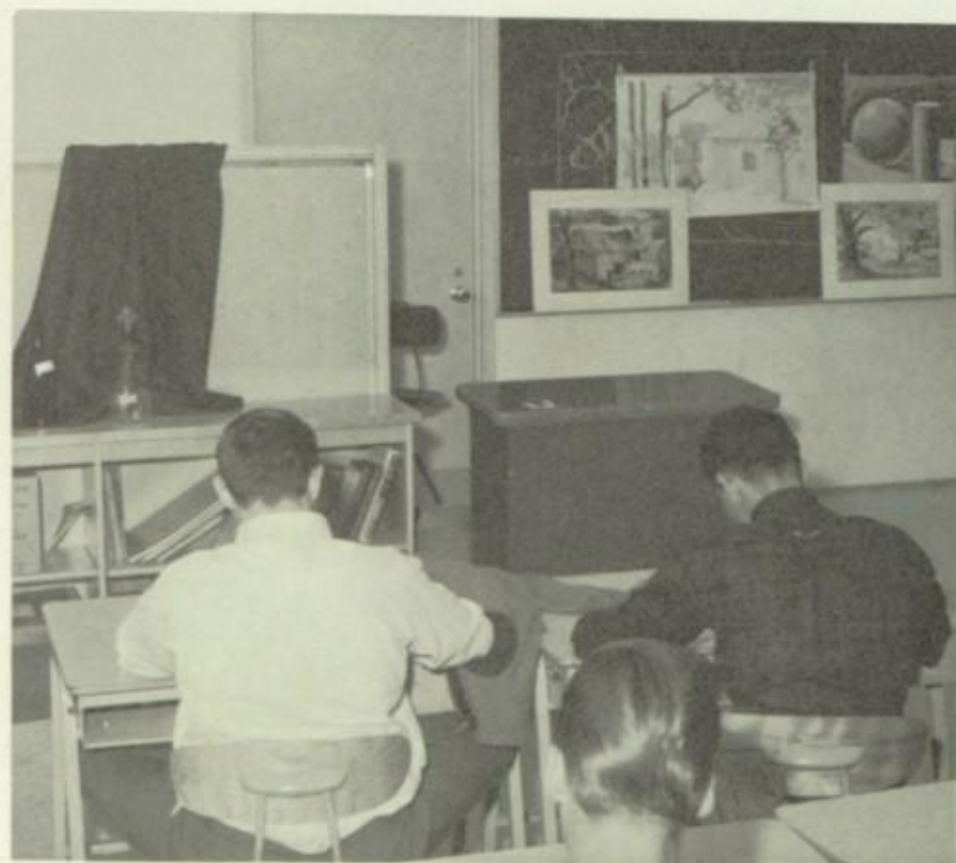

The dramatics area has also experienced remarkable success, having produced two well accepted plays: A Night of Melodrama and The Mouse That Roared.

Social Science Department

The Social Science Department attempts to develop for her students a deep and keen understanding of the individual, his society and his past in order that such investigation will lead him to an appreciation of his present environment. Such study will give him the necessary tools to examine and deal with the pressing local, national, and international problems of the 20th century.

The above is realized by the following:

Geography: An investigation of the physical land forms and the natural and human resources of the world is the subject treated in this class. Geography is required for all seventh graders.

American History: A general review of the United States since the founding of the country is given to all eighth graders.

Civics: This class gives to the ninth grade student an examination of the role each person must play in order to be a productive citizen. Particular attention is given to the role of government in this process.

World History: An elective class for all high school students. The course gives a review of the development of western civilization and its impact on modern nationhood.

American History: This required class is given to all juniors. A detailed survey of the development of the United States as a nation and the role she has in today's world is the major activity of this class.

The Social Sciences is a science and has its own method of research and development. The subject matter is reviewed only because the need to understand man, his environment and his past is the key to an improved future. People are our most important resource and knowledge of them is the goal of civilization.

Mathematics has held a high place in all educational programs for over 2000 years, for it has been considered indispensable in the training of the liberally educated man. At the same time, mathematics has been of invaluable service to other fields — biology, sociology, psychology, chemistry, and business — which are applying mathematics to problems which had not previously yielded to mathematical analysis. The expanding role of science and technology is sufficient evidence that an increased understanding of mathematics is a necessary requisite of intelligent citizenship; thus, a mathematics course is a prerequisite for graduation.

The mathematics curriculum at JGHS involves both junior and senior students. The junior high student will find a program of 7th and 8th Grade Mathematics, 9th Grade Algebra and 9th Grade General Mathematics, emphasizing the role of discovery in the study of the laws of operation, the language and symbolism, the nature of number systems, the concept of point and line and the other facets of mathematics.

Upon entry into senior high, the student will find a variety of elective courses, ranging from the fundamental to the advanced. The student may elect Fundamentals of Mathematics to strengthen his understandings and skills of basic operations or elect Consumers Mathematics to prepare him with the essentials of mathematics applicable to the problems of everyday living.

The field of science is expanding perhaps more rapidly than any other field of knowledge. The John Glenn science department is preparing students for a world where progress is a keyword. Because new discoveries continually expand scientific knowledge, the department helps the student become better able to cope with his complex environment by offering him the latest developments in science through investigation, experimentation, and true scientific conclusions based upon research.

One of the more spectacular adjuncts to the study of science at John Glenn is the beautiful new planetarium, which is in constant use by the entire school system and many visitors.

Language Department

Glenn students are urged to take at least one foreign language. Offered are French, Latin, German and Spanish. Teaching the students to speak and listen to, read and understand, and to be able to write in and appreciate their elected language are the goals of the instructors. Concurrently, students are exposed to the history, background and customs of the land of their language. A beautiful new language laboratory complements classroom instruction, while many records, filmstrips, and outside materials also enable the student to see, and hear as he practices.

Physical Education Department

Convinced that physical education is an important part of general education, the department combines physical and mental training so that each student may experience group and individual participation. Other goals are physical fitness, sports knowledge, muscle coordination, and sportsmanship.

To insure full individual development, a full range of activities covers individual differences. Studies of health and recreation and safety teach courtesy, sportsmanship, first-aid, life-saving, and skills in sports. Physical activities provide enjoyable recreation as well as necessary forms of exercise, such as games, conditioning and corrective exercises, and sports. Intramurals in which boys and girls compete against each other individually or as teams, are an important part of high school life.

Training

Business Education courses are offered for many reasons, from personal to vocational.

The beginning courses in Business Education are for personal, experimental business career purposes. Examples of these courses are: Typing I, record keeping, Bookkeeping I, salesmanship and retailing, applied economics, and business law.

The advanced courses are offered to students who have developed the necessary skills to prepare them for a career in business. Some examples of these types of business courses are: Typing II, Typing III, Shorthand I and II, Bookkeeping II, secretarial practice, clerical training, and principles of management.

Senior students may request the cooperative occupation program to correlate their school day with an actual job situation. Students may choose either office occupations or distributive education.

Industrial Arts Department

The role of the Industrial Arts in the school is that of general education, providing an exploration in various areas of work. The courses, e.g., metal technology, auto mechanics, etc., provide ample variety for all interests, in that all courses are on an elective basis, especially on the high school level. There is a variety of courses in each area, providing opportunities for advancement, from the beginning courses to exploring considerable information of technical nature, and work experience.

The department is planning and providing additional time for pre-vocational training of a much more extensive nature. Eventually, Glenn will become a technical high school in addition to its regular academic offerings. With the extended time in auto mechanics and metal technology to a two-hour block for '65-'66, greater specialization and work-experiences, not possible with one-hour classes, will be of much greater value to the student.

The old idea of a plain school library has been discarded at Glenn. Instead, an Instructional Materials Center has been instituted. A large group of related service areas has been brought together to provide better coordination of many functions so that students and faculty may benefit.

Included are regular library facilities, the audio-visual center, a professional library, private study areas, and a movie preview room.

Home Economics assists young people in their own personal living as well as developing an appreciation of the satisfaction of home and family living. A well-rounded sequence of courses offered in the department are General 8th Grade Homemaking, Home Economics I, II, III, and Home and Family Living. Study includes personality, clothing, foods, child care, family relationships, housing, marriage preparation, consumer buying, home management and community living. These may be followed by Advanced Foods and/or Advanced Clothing which would give training toward an employable skill. For the student who is going on to college or other training and has the time to take only one home economics course, Senior Home Economics gives the basic home economics concepts and principles with which the skills of homemaking develop.

Autumn Ecstasy

"Autumn Ecstasy," the homecoming dance in honor of the football team, was sponsored by the student council. Couples who attended found the John Glenn Ballroom transformed into an actual "autumn ecstasy." Amber and gold leaves decorated the walls, while multi-colored balloons and low lights added to the autumnal atmosphere. However, the most captivating effect was the glittering elegance of the regal throne which awaited the selection of a queen.

As the evening progressed the tension mounted steadily for the five girls chosen as finalists to vie for the title of Homecoming Queen. The thrilling and climactic moment came when junior Chris Lund had the honor of being chosen as the first football queen in John Glenn's history. The happy queen was crowned with an exquisite tiara and presented a bouquet of beautiful red roses. She then joined her waiting court of Barbara Diadiun, Janis Greve, Diana Decker, and Cindi Crandell, to reign over the remainder of the dance.
